

Table of Contents

Working Scripts

Assessment to Package	2
Looping Script	5
Money Objections	8
Timing Objections	12
Decision Maker	15
Stall Objections	17
Referrals Framework	19
Partner Outreach Call and Voicemail	21
In-Room Proof Moment	23

Reference

Offer Framework	24
Chunking and Recommendation Examples	27
Assurance Drafts — Garrett to Refine	28

Assessment to Package

OPENING

First I want to hear what brought you in. Then we'll try some things together, and at the end I will tell you what I think makes sense from here.

DISCOVERY

So...what brought you in?

Got it. What is that making harder for you day to day?

And what would you like to be able to do that you can't do comfortably right now?

What have you tried so far? What helped, even briefly?

IF THE CONCERN IS NOT CLEAR:

Can you tell me more about that?

Can you give me an example?

FIND THE OTHER CONCERNS

Got it. Other than [FIRST ISSUE], what else is going on?

Anything else?

FOR EACH OTHER CONCERN

You mentioned [CONCERN]. How is that affecting you?

What would you like to get back to doing?

What have you tried?

Did anything help, even briefly?

IF IT IS ALL ONE AREA:

So your [AREA] is making it hard to [SPECIFIC DIFFICULTY THEY DESCRIBED]. How else is it affecting you?

When it starts bothering you, do you know what to do?

IF THERE ARE SEVERAL OVERLAPPING CONCERNS:

So it sounds like a few things...we've got [RELATED CONCERNS] around [FIRST MAIN CONCERN], [SECOND MAIN CONCERN], and [THIRD MAIN CONCERN].

CONFIRM

Alright. So we've got [CONCERN 1], [CONCERN 2], and [CONCERN 3]. Did I get that right?

BODY WORK

Great. Let's get you up and try some things together.

What are you noticing there?

How does that feel compared with when we started?

Anything else you notice?

TRANSITION TO THE OFFER

Got it. So today you noticed [WHAT THEY ACTUALLY DESCRIBED]. Is that right?

Based on everything you told me, I think we can help. You good to walk through it?

OFFER STACK

So for your [CONCERN 1], we'll start with [PROTOCOL 1]. [ASSURANCE 1]. So you can [WHAT THEY WANT BACK 1]. Do you think that would help?

Great. Now, for [CONCERN 2], we'll use [PROTOCOL 2]. It's great because [ASSURANCE 2]. So you can [WHAT THEY WANT BACK 2]. Does that make sense?

Perfect. For [CONCERN 3], we'll use [PROTOCOL 3]. [ASSURANCE 3]. This way you can [WHAT THEY WANT BACK 3]. Do you think that would help?

Alright. So we've got [PROTOCOL 1] for [WANT 1], [PROTOCOL 2] for [WANT 2], and [PROTOCOL 3] for [WANT 3]. You think that would solve the problem?

RECOMMENDATION

My recommendation is the [SIX- / TWELVE-WEEK] Amari Practice because [REASON BASED ON THEIR CONCERNS AND TODAY'S SESSION].

IF RECOMMENDING TWELVE WEEKS:

You'll get 24 guided sessions with me over twelve weeks, plus Living Practice, our video course. We'll put those pieces together around what you want to get back to doing.

The twelve-week Amari Practice is $5,400. Would you like to get started?

IF RECOMMENDING SIX WEEKS:

We also have a twelve-week practice at $5,400, but based on what you've told me and what we saw today, I don't think you need to start there. I'd recommend six weeks so we can focus on [PRIORITIES]. That's 12 sessions with me, plus Living Practice, for $3,000.

Would you like to get started?

IF YES:

Great. Let's get you started.

IF THEY RAISE AN OBJECTION:

I completely hear you... Do you mind if I ask you a question? Do you think the Amari Method can help you get back to [GOAL]?

Got it. What's the main thing holding you back?

Looping Script

WHEN TO USE: An objection after the offer. Use once; skip questions already answered.

Borrow only the relevant response from another script, then return here for remaining concerns and the close. Skip confirmation or a close already answered. Payment transfers to Money section 9 finish there.

1. Acknowledge and check confidence

“I completely hear you... Do you mind if I ask you a question? Do you think the Amari Method can help you get back to [GOAL]?”

Wait. Declines → stop.

“Yes I do, but [OBJECTION]”

“Ahh...so the main thing is [OBJECTION]?”

Confirm, then go to section 2.

“Yeah...” — uncertain / “I’m not sure”

“Well, what’s your main concern?”

If unclear, use two possibilities their answer suggests:

“Got it...is it more [CONCERN 1] or [CONCERN 2]?”

Clarify, then section 2. Uncertainty isn’t agreement.

“No. I don’t think it will help”

“Understood. What makes you say that?”

Specific doubt → section 2. Recommendation doesn’t fit → reconsider it. Firm no → section 5.

“Yes I do” — certain

“Love it...I’m curious...what makes you say that?”

Skip if answered. Use actual assessment findings:

“I agree. I mean, given what you told me about [PROBLEM], and [ACTUAL FINDING OR CHANGE]...it sounds like we can really help.”

Return to their original objection:

“So it’s [OBJECTION] that’s holding you back?”

Then section 2. Ready to start → section 4’s close.

2. Isolate, then filter

“Other than [OBJECTION]...is there anything else holding you back?”

Track all concerns. If several:

“Got it. So it’s [CONCERN 1] and [CONCERN 2]. Which is the biggest concern?”

“Mind if I present some possible solutions?”

Yes → section 3. No → section 5. Isolate once; don’t repeat before each response.

3. Address the concern they actually named

Use only the relevant response; skip answered questions. Then section 4, before closing.

Returning from another script? Resume the unresolved concern or section 4—not section 1.

Money / value / confidence

Use Money Objections:

Past disappointments → section 2.

Results / lasting change → section 3.

Fear of spending → section 4.

Value / comparison → section 5.

Finances → section 6. Don’t repeat a value pitch when they already see it.

Timing / travel / availability

Use Timing Objections. Value/results concern emerges → Money above. Use actual availability.

Partner / shared decision

Use Decision Maker. Shared decision still needed → section 5, not payment.

“I need to think about it”

Use Stall Objections if the concern is unclear; otherwise address it above. Simply wants time:

“100% respect that. Just out of curiosity, is there any new information that’s making you reconsider?”

Concern → its response. Still wants time → section 5. Don’t restart the loop.

4. Confirm, then return to the close

“Does that address what you were concerned about, or is there still something we haven’t covered?”

Partial answer or unresolved concern:

“What part am I still missing?”

Address it, not the whole pitch. Can’t substantiate an answer → say so. Still unresolved → section 5.

Clear yes, with another concern already named:

“Good. You also mentioned [OTHER CONCERN]. Where do you stand on that now?”

Unresolved → section 3, then confirm. Resolved → next known concern.

When the concerns are resolved:

“Great—so you ready to get started with the Amari Practice?”

Yes:

Use Money Objections, section 9: Complete payment. Verify payment before confirming enrollment.

Payment trouble → checkout help, not another pitch.

New concern → section 3. Wants time → section 5. Firm no → stop.

5. Agree the next step—or finish

If something specific needs to happen:

“When do you expect [SPECIFIC THING] to be sorted?”

“Let’s set a specific time to reconnect then. Would [AVAILABLE TIME] work?”

Agree what needs to be ready. Unknown timing / wants time:

“Would you prefer I check back on [DATE], or would you rather contact me when you’re ready?”

Use actual availability. Follow-up isn’t a commitment to buy. Declines / not proceeding:

“Understood. Thanks for talking it through with me.”

End the sales conversation.

Money Objections

Skip answered questions. Sent here by another script? Answer the concern, then return there for remaining concerns and the close. Don't repeat confirmation. For payment, finish in section 9.

1. Find the concern

"I hear you. What's the biggest concern for you about spending it?"

Wait. If unclear:

"Is it more that you're unsure this will be worth it, or that paying for it would be difficult?"

"Got it. So it's [CONCERN]. Other than that, is there anything else holding you back?"

Several concerns: "Which is the biggest concern?" Address it first, then the others. Use only the relevant sections.

2. "I've spent money on things that didn't help"

"So it's not that you don't want to spend money getting better. You don't want to pay for another thing that doesn't help. Is that right?"

"When we worked together today, you said [ACTUAL CHANGE]. How did that compare with what you've tried before?"

No change → section 3's no-change path.

If they say other things helped temporarily:

"Right—and one good session isn't what you're looking for. Marisol reported eight months without pain while following her daily practice. That's why I'm recommending more than today's session: we'll work together, see what carries over into your life, and adjust as we go."

Don't attribute their diagnosis to Marisol or promise her result. Then section 8.

3. "How do I know it'll work for me?"

"Fair question. Before we started, you felt [WHAT THEY REPORTED]. Afterward, you noticed [ACTUAL CHANGE]. How significant was that to you?"

No reported change → no-change path below.

If significant, but they question whether it will last:

"Right. Today showed us that your movement could change—not that we've finished the job. That's why I'm recommending [SIX/TWELVE] weeks: to see how it holds up when you're [ACTIVITY], work through what's still getting in the way, and build a practice you can use yourself."

If they ask for a guarantee:

"I can't guarantee the outcome. My confidence comes from [SPECIFIC FINDING], the change you felt, and my experience working with [RELEVANT PROBLEM]. That gives me a clear reason to recommend this for you. What would you still need to feel comfortable deciding?"

If no meaningful change:

"Understood. I don't want to count something as progress if it wasn't useful to you. My reason for recommending this is [ACTUAL FINDING AND WHY THE PROPOSED WORK FITS]. Does that address your concern?"

No credible basis → reassess the recommendation. Otherwise → section 8.

4. "I believe it'll help. Spending that much still scares me"

"I hear you. What scares you most about spending it?"

Unfamiliar commitment, not doubt about results:

"Is there something that purchase would put in jeopardy, or does it feel uncomfortable because it's more than you're used to spending on yourself?"

If financially workable:

"You said [PROBLEM] is [THEIR DAY-TO-DAY IMPACT]. Where does getting that addressed sit among the things you want to put money toward right now?"

"And does what we've done today, and the plan we've discussed, give you enough confidence to take that next step with me?"

Yes → section 8. Financial concern → section 6. Low priority → ask what takes priority; address it or accept their decision. Credit availability alone doesn't establish affordability.

5. "I don't see the value" / "Another option costs less"

"What feels missing for you?"

For an actual comparison:

"What are you comparing it to? What would you be getting with that option?"

Address their comparison without disparaging it.

"For you, I'm recommending [PRACTICE] because [SPECIFIC REASON]. We'll use [RELEVANT PROTOCOL/WORK] for [THEIR GOAL], see how it holds up between sessions, and adjust with you. Living Practice gives you the video course to support your practice between sessions. Does that address the difference you're weighing?"

If relevant: "You mentioned [PROBLEM] affects your ability to [WORK]. That's part of what this recommendation is meant to address." No earnings, qualifications, or referral-income promises. Then section 8.

6. “I want it. I need to figure out the money”

“Got it. So it sounds like it’s just figuring out the finances—is that right?”

“So if you had the money today, would anything else prevent you from getting started?”

Other concern → its section first. Otherwise:

“Is it getting the payment method sorted, waiting for money you’re expecting, or that the amount itself isn’t workable?”

Payment method → section 9. Known incoming money → section 10. Amount → below.

“What would need to change for it to be workable?”

Only if twelve weeks was recommended and six weeks genuinely fits. Already offered six weeks? Don’t offer it again; section 10 or, if interested, section 11.

“We also have a twelve-week practice at $5,400, but based on what you’ve told me and what we saw today, I don’t think you need to start there. I’d recommend six weeks so we can focus on [PRIORITIES]. That’s 12 sessions with me, plus Living Practice, for $3,000. Would that be workable?”

No automatic downsell or twelve-week result in six. Yes → section 8. Unworkable → section 10. Interested in Klarna → section 11.

7. “I need to think” / “I always take 24 hours”

“100% respect that. Just out of curiosity, is there any new information that’s making you reconsider?”

Specific issue → address it. If they simply want time:

“Got it. Do you feel the practice is worth doing, and that the commitment is workable for you?”

Clear yes:

“Would you be comfortable getting started today, or would you still prefer to sleep on it?”

Start → resolve remaining concerns, then section 9. Unsure → clarify once and address it. Wants time → section 10. Firm no → stop.

8. Confirm, then close

“Does that address what you were concerned about, or is there still something we haven’t covered?”

Yes: resolve any remaining concerns. None remain:

“Great. Would you like to get started?”

Yes → section 9. Partial/no → “What part am I still missing?” Address it, not the whole pitch. Can’t substantiate an answer → say so; section 10. Wants time → section 7. Firm no → stop.

9. Complete payment

“Great. Let’s get your [SIX/TWELVE]-week practice set up.”

Existing checkout: six weeks/12 sessions/$3,000 or twelve weeks/24 sessions/$5,400; both include Living Practice. Verify selection and successful payment before confirming enrollment. Arrange the next session through existing booking.

Missing card/payment failure → offer another displayed method or reconnect later (section 10). Klarna → section 11. Don’t invent payment options.

10. Agree the next step

“When do you expect [SPECIFIC THING] to be sorted?”

Known date: “Let’s set a specific time to reconnect then. Would [AVAILABLE TIME] work?” Agree what must be ready.

*Unknown: “Would you prefer I check back on [DATE], or would you rather contact me when you’re ready?”
No follow-up → stop. No invented deadline, discount, or obligation to buy.*

11. Klarna — payment logistics only

“Would you like to see whether Klarna is an option?”

Existing checkout only. Client reviews displayed approval, payments, dates, interest, and fees. Don’t promise eligibility or terms. Technical walkthrough separate.

Payment succeeds → section 9’s enrollment confirmation. Unavailable/declined/unwanted → another displayed method they choose, or section 10. No repeated financing pitches.

Timing Objections

WHEN TO USE: Time, travel, or availability is holding them back. Skip questions already answered.

Borrow only the needed response; return to the script you came from for remaining concerns and the close. Skip confirmation or a close already answered. Payment transfers to Money section 9 finish there.

1. “I’m overwhelmed” / “Now isn’t a good time”

“What is making now feel hard?”

If unclear:

“Is it more that you do not have room in your week for sessions right now...or that it just feels like one more thing to take on?”

Schedule → section 2. One more thing:

“Completely hear you...so it sounds like you have a lot going on right now. Mind if I share some context on that?”

No → section 6. Yes:

“One of the first things we do is figure out where to focus. We work on that together in your sessions, and Living Practice gives you the video course to support what you practice between sessions. That way you know what to work on for [PROBLEM], instead of trying to figure it all out yourself.”

“Would having that direction help, or would taking this on still be too much right now?”

Helps → section 2. Still too much → section 6. Results/value doubt → Money section 3/5, then check availability here before closing.

2. “I don’t have room in my week”

“Got it. What specifically would need to work for the schedule to feel doable?”

Compare recurring availability with Garrett’s actual openings. Explain both the recommended sessions and the actual between-session practice before asking:

“I have [ACTUAL OPTIONS]. Would that work for you throughout the [SIX/TWELVE] weeks?”

Yes → section 5. Future start? Clarify setup now versus reconnecting there before returning to another script. Partial fit:

“Which part wouldn’t work?”

Check that constraint. No workable schedule → section 6.

3. “I’m going away”

“Got it. When are you leaving, and when are you back?”

“Would virtual sessions while you are away work better...or would you rather begin in person when you return?”

Virtual:

“What times could you realistically do, and would you have a suitable space to move during the sessions?”

Check time zone, actual openings, whether virtual fits the work, and the between-session commitment. Workable → section 5. Not workable → explore starting after return.

In person after return:

“Got it. Let’s look at what would work once you’re back.”

Check recurring availability (section 2). Dates unconfirmed or prefers to decide after return → section 6. Don’t promise pauses, extensions, or date changes.

4. “I need to confirm the timeline”

“Got it. What are you confirming?”

“When will you know?”

Known date/event → section 6. Schedule → section 2. Travel → section 3. Shared decision → Decision Maker.

If they don’t know:

“Understood. Is there something specific you’re waiting on, or do you just need more room before taking this on?”

Address what they name. Genuine uncertainty or needs space → section 6.

5. Confirm, then close

“Does that make the timing workable, or is there still something we haven’t covered?”

Unresolved → address it or section 6. Clear yes:

If beginning on a future date:

“Great—so [DATE] works to begin. Would you like to take care of payment now, or reconnect before then?”

Reconnect → section 6. Pay now → resolve remaining concerns below (or in the script you came from), then Money section 9; skip another close.

“Other than that, is there anything else holding you back?”

Skip if answered; return to any known concerns. Money Objections: results → section 3; value → 5; finances → 6. Shared decision → Decision Maker. All resolved, not already agreed:

“Great—so you ready to get started with the Amari Practice?”

Yes → Money, section 9: Complete payment. Wants time → section 6. Firm no → stop.

6. Agree the next step—or finish

Known date/event:

“Let’s set a time to talk once you have [DETAIL] confirmed. Would [AVAILABLE DAY/TIME] work?”

Unknown timing, wants space, or agreed to reconnect before starting:

“Would you prefer I check back on [DATE], or would you rather contact me when you’re ready?”

Agree an available time and what needs confirming. No follow-up or not proceeding:

“Understood. Thanks for talking it through with me.”

Decision Maker

WHEN TO USE: They need a spouse or partner's input. Skip answered questions. Partner present → section 2. Ready now → section 4.

Borrow only the needed response; return to the script you came from for remaining concerns and the close. Skip confirmation or a close already answered. Payment transfers to Money section 9 finish there.

1. "I need to talk to my spouse / business partner"

"Got it...other than talking with them, is there anything holding you back?"

Keep track of their own concerns too.

"Is it cool if I ask a question?"

No → section 5. Yes:

"Got it, just out of curiosity—what would be their biggest concern?"

"[RECAP]...anything else?"

Known concern → section 2. They don't know → section 3; don't invent an objection.

2. Help with the actual concern

Partner present? Ask them directly: "What's your biggest concern?" Address it below; skip the next question.

"Well, how would you handle that concern with them?"

Listen, then address what is missing. Money Objections: results → section 3; value → 5; finances → 6. Schedule/travel → Timing. Then return here; shared agreement may still be needed.

"Does that address the concern, or is there something we still need to work through?"

Partial/no → clarify what remains. Cannot resolve it → section 5. Yes, partner present → section 4. Otherwise:

"Got it...are you open to ideas that could maybe help?"

Yes → section 3. No → section 5.

3. Help them explain the recommendation

"When you talk with them, I'd start with what you told me: [PROBLEM] is keeping you from [GOAL]. We found [ACTUAL FINDING], and that's why I'm recommending [PRACTICE]—so we can [SPECIFIC WORK AND PURPOSE]."

Use the recommendation already made: six weeks, 12 sessions, $3,000; or twelve weeks, 24 sessions, $5,400. Both include Living Practice, the video course. Don't imply improvement they didn't report.

"Would a short summary of that help, or would you prefer we talk together so they can ask me questions directly?"

Summary: concern, finding, recommendation, price, and commitment; then section 5. Joint conversation: arrange a time for everyone and address their questions together (section 2). Neither → section 5.

If they now feel ready → section 4.

4. Is the decision ready?

Partner present: “Where do you both stand now?” Resolve remaining concerns. Both ready → the close below; needs time → section 5; not proceeding → stop. Skip questions about an absent partner.

If their partner’s role is still unclear:

“Is this something you decide together, or do you want to talk it through with them before making your own decision?”

Still unclear, if useful:

“What would happen if they said no?”

Joint decision still needed or still wants their input → section 5. Their own decision, ready now:

“And where do you stand on [OTHER CONCERN THEY NAMED]?”

Skip if none. Resolve remaining concerns before closing:

“Great—so you ready to get started with the Amari Practice?”

Yes → Money, section 9: Complete payment. Wants input/time → section 5. No → stop.

5. Agree the next step—or finish

Both present and need time? Skip to agreeing a follow-up below.

“Not a problem at all. When would you be able to talk with them?”

“Great. Let’s reconnect after you’ve talked it through. Would [AVAILABLE DAY/TIME] work?”

Agree what needs answering. Unknown timing:

“Would you prefer I check back on [DATE], or would you rather contact me when you’re ready?”

When they return:

“How did the conversation go?”

Agreement → check remaining concerns, then section 4’s close. Specific concern → section 2. Partner says no:

“Got it. Is there a question you’d like my help answering, or have you decided not to move forward?”

Question → address it; don’t assume it changes their decision. Decision is no / declines follow-up:

“Understood. Thanks for talking it through with me.”

Stall Objections

WHEN TO USE: They want time without naming a concern. Concern already known → section 4. Skip questions already answered.

Borrow only the needed response; return to the script you came from for remaining concerns and the close. Skip confirmation or a close already answered. Payment transfers to Money section 9 finish there.

1. “I need to think about it”

“Do you mind if I’m upfront with you?”

Wait. If no, section 6.

“Yeah so typically almost everyone is ready to get started...and if not it’s really because of 1 or 2 reasons.”

“One—they don’t see the value...I mean do you see it?”

Unsure/no: “What feels missing for you?” → section 4. Yes:

“Cool. I’m confident this will help.”

“Two—logistically they need to make sure it will work...”

“So is it number 2 or something crazy? Haha”

Concern → section 4. Neither:

“Got it. What would you like to think through?”

Concern → section 4. Wants time → section 6.

2. “I always take 24 hours to make a decision”

“100% respect that. Just out of curiosity, is there any new information that’s making you reconsider?”

Concern → section 4. Normal decision process:

“Do you mind if I share some perspective on that?”

No → section 6. Yes:

“The reason I’m recommending this is [ACTUAL FINDING AND WHY THE PRACTICE FITS THEIR GOAL]. Do you feel the practice is worth doing, and that the commitment is workable for you?”

Clear yes:

“Would you be comfortable getting started today, or would you still prefer to sleep on it?”

Start → section 5. Unsure/no → clarify the concern, then section 4. Still wants time → section 6; do not ask again.

3. “It’s a big commitment / decision”

“Do you feel maybe this is just a big decision?”

Wait.

“Gotcha. And...do you feel maybe a bit nervous...it being a big decision?”

Wait.

“I totally understand. What feels biggest about it?”

Concern → section 4. If unclear: “Is it the cost, the time, talking with someone else, or whether it will work for you?” → section 4.

Value and commitment work, but nervous about starting:

“That makes sense. And do you see yourself taking action on that value?”

Yes → section 5. Unsure → “What would make taking that step difficult?” → section 4. Wants time → section 6. Firm no → stop.

4. Address what is actually holding them back

Money Objections: past disappointments → section 2; results → 3; fear of spending → 4; value/comparison → 5; finances → 6.

Scheduling/travel → Timing Objections. Shared decision → Decision Maker.

Several concerns: address the biggest first, then the others. Don’t repeat discovery. After responding → section 5.

5. Confirm, then close

“Does that address what you were concerned about, or is there still something we haven’t covered?”

Partial/no: “What part am I still missing?” Address it. Still unresolved → section 6.

Yes: address any remaining concerns. All resolved:

“Great—so you ready to get started with the Amari Practice?”

Yes → Money, section 9: Complete payment. Already agreed? Skip the extra ask. New concern → section 4. Time → section 6. Firm no → stop.

6. Agree the next step—or finish

“Would you prefer I check back on [DATE], or would you rather contact me when you’re ready?”

Agree an available time and what needs answering beforehand.

No follow-up or not proceeding:

“Understood. Thanks for talking it through with me.”

End the sales conversation.

Referrals Framework

Referrals are when our clients send us more clients. We want lots of referrals. Clients do send referrals on their own, but it works even better if we just ask for them...

When to ask clients to introduce you to their friends:

After they have experienced a meaningful shift in a session and are excited about the work. If you run out of time in person, adapt this to text.

* After they start a text thread with you and share anything positive. This is a very good time. Clients text most often after they: 1) Come in for a session or 2) Get good results from a protocol Garrett showed them. They text you because they are excited about what changed.

Asking for referrals gets you the simplest, cheapest, fastest, easiest, highest-converting opportunities. This is the single most lucrative use of your follow-up time. This is the least work per sale out of anything in this handbook. Yet, few salespeople do it because they are afraid of sounding like a douche. But when you do it our way, you won't sound like a douche. And that's why you'll win.

Referral Process

1) Compliment them - Tell them they're great to work with. This makes them like you more and happier they chose Amari.

2) Get introduction - Then ask who they know that is dealing with something in their body and would benefit from coming in.

3) Give them words to use: If they say yes, ask them to start a group chat.

* Tell them to say: "I've been working with Garrett at Amari Method and it has been great. Thought you might want to come in and see what he does. I'll let you two take it from here."

4) Get more introductions — If you get one. Ask for more.

Make Referrals Your Top Priority. Nothing will net you more money per second than referrals. It is your highest return on time.

* If they text, call immediately.

* Always double dial before texting.

* Referrals should be a meaningful part of your sales. DO NOT UNDERESTIMATE IT.

Referrals In Action

Compliment: Great. We've got you all locked in. Quick question for you—you've been great to work with. If we could work with people like you all day—we would (hahaha)...

Get Introduction: Who else do you know who is dealing with something in their body and would benefit from coming in? I ask because I only take on five new clients a month, and I'd love for a couple of those people to come from your world.

* IF YES: Give Them Words To Use: You against putting us all in a group text? I can shoot you a message to copy paste if that's easier for you? It just says... "I've been working with Garrett at Amari Method and it has been great. Thought you might want to come in and see what he does. I'll let you two take it from here." Cool?

* Get More Introductions: Great - anyone else come to mind?

* IF NO: [Move on.]

Partner Outreach Call and Voicemail

PARTNER OUTREACH CALL

GOAL: Book a gifted Assessment. Do not sell a program or ask for referrals on this call.

OPEN

"Hi [Name], this is [your name] with Amari Method. Is now an okay time for a quick question?"

"Do you ever have clients who are doing the right things, but keep running into the same physical limitation?"

LISTEN

"What does that usually look like?"

REFLECT

"So even after [their words], they are still dealing with [their words]."

THE INVITATION

"That is why I reached out. At Amari, we help people notice where their body is working harder than it needs to, then teach simple at-home protocols they can practice."

"Rather than try to explain it over the phone, we would like to gift you an Assessment so you can experience the work yourself. You can decide whether it is useful, and there is no expectation that you refer anyone."

BOOK IT

"Would [day/time] or [day/time] work better?"

IF THEY ASK ABOUT A PARTNERSHIP

"First, come experience the work. If it feels useful afterward, we can talk about whether it belongs in your toolkit for the people you cannot fully help."

IF THEY ARE NOT INTERESTED

"Of course. I am glad we connected."

VOICEMAIL

“Hi [Name], this is [your name] with Amari Method. I was calling because we work with people who are active, but keep running into physical limitations that affect their training or daily life. I wondered if you see clients like that in your work. I would love to gift you an Assessment so you can experience the work yourself. There is no obligation. Call or text me at [number] if you would be open to it. Again, this is [your name] with Amari Method. Thanks.”

In-Room Proof Moment

Use only after a client has felt a real shift.

Garrett: “Wait—say that again. What did you just notice?”

“That’s exactly what people come in hoping for. Would you be open to saying that in a one-minute video, in your own words? No pressure at all.”

“Is it okay if I record?”

Ask:

1. “What brought you in?”
2. “What did you notice today?”
3. “What feels possible now that did not feel possible before?”

Close:

“Thank you. We’ll always send it to you before we use anything publicly.”

If they decline:

“Of course. I’m just glad it helped.”

Get permission before recording, and separate approval before sharing publicly. Let them use their own words.

Offer Framework

DISCOVERY: More bad stuff, less good stuff — if you do nothing.

OFFER: More good stuff, less bad stuff — if you buy.

You just went through Pain Cycles, pulled some teeth, and stacked the pain. Now, it's time to offer our solution. Kind of. I say "kind of" because typical salespeople go right to "pitching". Don't do that.

Why trouble yourself with getting these pain points and then... abandon them? This sucks. Don't suck. Making offers at ACQ is more than just listing benefits and asking for money. First, we map all the problems in the discovery phase to solutions we provide—then we ask for money. In other words, we craft a personalized offer on the spot. This crushes. And by the way. You have two minutes.

Now if that doesn't sound like enough time, then one, you are wasting time. More specifically—wasting words. Remember, talking between 150-170 words per minute gives you about 320 words to make your offer. That is plenty of words if you know what you're doing. It just means... you must make every word count. So what words should you say? Your solution stack.

How to Make The Offer

To make the offer, we have to transition from discovery smoothly. We do this after we recapped all the problems. It makes sense to then tell them you think we can help them, then ask permission to share. As soon as they give you permission to share, you present your notes from discovery right next to our solutions. So choose three of our solutions and map their problems to those.

Here's the offer making process:

- 1) Transition: Tell them you think we can help. Then ask if they'd like to hear how. Ex: Given everything you just told me, I think [PRODUCT] would really help you. Want me to walk through it?
- 2) Map: Connect their problems to our solutions, assurances, benefits, then confirm that it would help. If they have one problem, then map it to all three solutions by breaking it into micro problems in the discovery phase. If they have more than three problems, great! Then you group them so one solution solves more than one problem.
 - a) Problem: Remind them of their problem. Ex: For your "tight calf" issue. ..

- b) Solution: Tell them how we'll solve it specifically (think protocol). Ex: When you come in, Garrett will show you the Spring Step protocol.
- c) Assure: Tell them why that thing is great (decrease risk). Ex: Garrett will make sure you are doing it in the exact position your body needs.
- d) Benefit: Tell them the good stuff the solution gets them. Ex: So you can move around without your calves always feeling tight.
- e) Confirm: Ask for confirmation. Ex: Do you think that would help?
- 3) Stack: List all solution and benefit pairs up to this point. You do this three times. After the third time (and confirmation), you ask for the sale.
- 4) Ask: Ask if they are ready to buy/move forward. Ex: Great—So you ready to get started with the Amari Practice?
- 5) Drop Price & STFU: Then you state the price and shut the fuck up.

Preparation makes offer stacking the same every time. The way you label problems in discovery must map to solutions we provide. This means you can have all your labels prepared ahead of time. Just match away in the discovery phase. Prospects change, but the solutions we provide stay the same. This means you can have assurances for each solution prepared ahead of time. The benefits for each solution also stay the same. This means you can have benefits prepared ahead of time... Get the trend? With proper preparation you need only to “plug and chug”. You should never have to come up with anything on the fly and risk saying something dumb, screwing up your tone, or both.

A COMPLETELY STACKED OFFER: PLUG AND CHUG

[Transition] Based on everything you've said...I think we can help. You good to walk through it?

So given [Problem(s)]... it looks like you'll get the most from [Solution1]. It's [Assurance1] so you can [Benefit1]... How does that sound?

Great so you've got [Solution1] to [Benefit1]. Now [Problem(s)] you can tackle best with [Solution2]. It's great because [Assurance2]. So you can [Benefit2]... Does that make sense?

Perfect... So with [Solution1] to [Benefit1] and [Solution2] to [Benefit2]... It means that for [Problem(s)] the [Solution3] will help you move more freely. [Assurance3] makes it totally worth it. This way you will [Benefit3]... Do you think that would help?

Alright then looks like we've got everything covered from three angles. You've got [Solution1] to [Benefit1]... [Solution2] to [Benefit2]... and [Solution3] to [Benefit3].

You think that would help solve your problem?

Great—So you ready to get started with the Amari Practice?

It's [PRICE]. Do you want to use Visa, Amex, Mastercard, or Discover?

PRO TIP: If you ever ask “do you have any questions?” you will be benched and made an example of. I do not recommend asking prospects for reasons not to buy.

If the prospect agrees then you closed 'em. Excellent. Collect payment, move to the referral section, and get their friends on board.

If the prospect does anything else. They've objected. This is not ideal. But, we are far from powerless. So I'll show you exactly how to overcome buying objections and get the close next. Let's do it.

Chunking and Recommendation Examples

CHUNK DOWN: Break one concern into specific difficulties—such as jaw pain affecting chewing or sleep. Confirm the connection before matching a protocol; poor sleep alone does not identify a jaw problem.

CHUNK UP: Group related difficulties into three useful concerns rather than giving every symptom its own solution.

INCLUDE THE WHOLE BODY: Amari is a connected system, not ten unrelated body-part fixes. At least one concern should address how their body works together. Explain connections from their concerns and the assessment, rather than inventing another complaint. Confirm the full map after the assessment if needed.

EXAMPLE — JAW, SHOULDERS, AND WHOLE-BODY MOVEMENT:

So your jaw is the main thing—you want to chew comfortably and stop having it interrupt your sleep. You also mentioned your shoulders are tight. And when we got you moving, you noticed how differently your shoulders felt when we included your hips and back. So we'll address the jaw, the shoulder tension, and getting those pieces working together. Did I get that right?

POSSIBLE MATCHES: Jaw concern — Jaw Align. Shoulder tension — Passive Bridge if the assessment supports that choice. Whole-body coordination — Suspension Squat to bring supported shoulder opening and hip movement together. Choose the actual protocols from the assessment, not from this example alone.

EXAMPLE — CONCERN-BASED RECOMMENDATION:

My recommendation is the twelve-week Amari Practice. Your jaw is what brought you in, but you also want to stop carrying that tension through your shoulders and feel more comfortable through your whole body. Today you felt a difference when we worked with those pieces together. I want us to build on that, see how it carries into your workday, and adjust the practice as we go—not just show you a jaw exercise and leave you to figure out the rest.

Garrett chooses six or twelve weeks from the actual assessment, not a fixed rule.

Assurance Drafts — Garrett to Refine

JAW ALIGN

“Jaw pain is one of my strongest areas. I helped someone who could barely eat, hadn’t slept properly in years, and was close to leaving his job because the pain consumed his day. He got his meals, sleep, and working life back. That’s why I take this seriously—and why I’m confident starting here.”

SPRING STEP

“Spring Step is one of my strongest tools for getting people moving again. One tennis coach was turning down lessons because his calves couldn’t get him through the day. He went from wondering how he’d earn a living to coaching all week and playing on weekends. That’s the experience behind this recommendation.”

PASSIVE BRIDGE

“Passive Bridge is a foundation of my work for a reason. One client couldn’t reach a kitchen shelf, sleep comfortably, or pick up his daughter. Working with his shoulders, back, and hips together helped him get all three back. That’s why I’m looking beyond the spot that hurts.”

ACTIVE BRIDGE

“Active Bridge is one of my go-to tools when support is the missing piece. I worked with someone who could touch his toes but couldn’t stand long enough to cook dinner. He went from arranging his life around places to sit to spending a day hiking with his family. That’s why I’m recommending support, not another stretch.”

SUSPENSION SQUAT

“Suspension Squat is one of my strongest tools for bringing the body together. One client had stopped getting on the floor because he was afraid he couldn’t get back up. He went from watching his grandchildren play to being the person they climbed on. That’s why this is more than learning to squat.”

HAND BALANCER

“Hand problems are something I’ve had tremendous success working with. One musician was preparing to give up the career he’d spent thirty years building because playing had become unbearable. He went from packing away his instrument to performing a full concert. That’s the level of function I’m interested in helping you recover.”

POWER POSTURE

“Power Posture has been a turning point for people whose workday was exhausting their neck and shoulders. One client finished every afternoon lying down just to make it to dinner. He went from barely surviving work to having an evening with his family afterward. That’s why I care about support—not making you look straighter.”

VERTICAL DROP

“Vertical Drop is one of my strongest tools for people who feel permanently braced. One client described every day as carrying a hundred-pound backpack she couldn’t take off. She went from scheduling her life around the next massage to knowing how to let that holding ease herself. That’s the independence I want this to give you.”

SPINAL WAVE

“Spinal Wave has changed things for people who thought their backs were finished. One client needed help putting on his socks and dreaded every car ride. He went from negotiating every ordinary movement to taking a road trip he’d postponed for years. That’s why I don’t judge progress by how deep you can stretch.”

ELBOW RESET

“Elbow problems are one of the things I work with repeatedly. One tennis pro was ready to stop teaching because every demonstration hurt—and even lifting his coffee had become a problem. He went from planning his exit to teaching a full schedule again. That’s why I’m bringing you a specific approach, not just telling you to rest.”